Professor Geoffrey Watson, director of the Comparative and International Law Institute, invites you to an informal conversation on

International Law and the Conflict in Syria

Tuesday, November 3, 2015
12:45 to 1:50 p.m.
Room 220

Professor Watson will explore the international legal dimensions of the conflict in Syria. He will examine: Whether international law limit Russian or US participation in the conflict? What level of force can be used? Would a no-fly zone be lawful without UN Security Council authorization? How does human rights law relate to the conflict? What legal principals govern the status of Syrian refugees in the region and elsewhere? Q&A to follow.

A pizza lunch will be provided.

Please Rsvp to Constantia Dedoulis at Institutes@law.edu no later than Monday, November 2 at noon.