INTERNSHIPS

Professor Ogilvy is now accepting applications for two positions in the Innocence Project Clinic & Clemency Project for summer interns. For more information, contact Professor Ogilvy.

Harvard Law School – Legal Aid Bureau Summer Fellows are supervised by HLAB’s Clinical Instructors, practicing attorneys with years of trial and supervision experience, and students will be trained in all the relevant areas of the law. HLAB Summer Fellows generally experience a broad range of litigation and legal experience in as many as four primary practice areas. In the Family Law practice, HLAB represents victims of domestic violence in restraining order hearings, divorces, paternity, visitation, child support, and custody disputes. In the Housing Law practice, HLAB represents individual clients who are being evicted from public, subsidized, and private housing, and also works with tenant unions and other progressive organizations to ensure the availability of affordable housing in the Greater Boston area. In the Government Benefits practice, HLAB represents clients at hearings to obtain or retain their Supplemental Security Income and Social Security Disability Insurance benefits or unemployment benefits. Finally, in the Fair Wage practice, HLAB allows students to work on affirmative lawsuits addressing violations of state and federal labor laws. We ask student to choose a primary concentration in the area of housing or family law. Most Summer Fellows working at HLAB do so full-time, although we are willing to discuss alternative arrangements with students facing extenuating circumstances. Due to funding restrictions, HLAB is unable to pay its Summer Fellows.

The Harvard Legal Aid Bureau was founded in 1913 to provide free legal services for low-income people in the Greater Boston community. As the nation's oldest student-run legal services organization, the Harvard Legal Aid Bureau aspires to be an engine for progressive change and social justice. To learn even more about the Harvard Legal Aid Bureau, visit http://www.harvardlegalaid.org/.

Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis until all positions are filled. Please send (1) a resume, (2) a cover letter, (3) a law school transcript, and (4) two references to: Joey Michalakes, Outreach Director at HLABrecruitment@gmail.com

PRO BONO OPPORTUNITIES

Short-term and longer-term pro bono projects are listed on the CUA Law Pro Bono TWEN page. You also may create your own pro bono project. We encourage you to take the Pro Bono Challenge. Through the Pro Bono Challenge, CUA students pledge to complete varying levels of pro bono service during their three or four years of law school. Here are typical projects:

Small Claims Resource Center: Help self-represented parties at a limited advice clinic open on Thursday mornings. The Small Claims Resource Center, which provides legal and Court information related to Small Claims law and procedure, operates out of D.C. Superior Court, Building B. The Center is open on Thursdays, and Court is generally from 8:45 – 12:30. This project offers good real-world exposure to civil procedure and the opportunity interact with and provide critical assistance to individuals navigating the system. Sign up on TWEN http://tinyurl.com/n5gduvx and email Professor Mull with Professor Mullen@law.edu.

Office of Administrative Hearings Resource Center: Assist pro se litigants at the OAH Resource Center under the guidance of the OAH Resource Center Coordinator. Student volunteers conduct interviews during the clinic’s walk-in interview hours and provide legal information and brief assistance, including oral information and written informational documents; assistance in filling out OAH forms; and referrals, when appropriate, to organizations that can provide legal advice and representation. Monday and Tuesday options (the Center manages the calendar so will confirm availability on given dates) between 10am & 1pm for a 2-hour minimum shift (options include the full 3-hour shift, from 10am-12pm, or from 11am-1pm). Sign up on TWEN at http://tinyurl.com/Imauwmd and email Rachel Lukens, Attorney-Advisor and Resource Center Coordinator, at rachel.lukens@dc.gov with your specific availability.

Securities Law Program

TO: First Year Students interested in the Securities Law Program and Second Year Students interested in the Program who have already taken some Program courses

FROM: Prof. David A. Lipton, Director, Securities Law Program

RE: Informational Meeting on enrollment in the Securities Law Program

There will be an informational meeting on Monday, March 23rd, at 3 pm, in Room 303, to discuss how to plan your courses to satisfy the Securities Law Program requirements.

What is the Securities Law Program: It is a successful institute program offered at the Law School that seeks to train and place students who perform at the top half of their class and who have an interest in business and Securities Law. The Program imparts upon its participants skills and knowledge that are valuable for practice in a broad spectrum of legal careers. Over the years, we have built up an alumni base in Securities Law of over 500 practitioners, many of whom are willing to mentor and give you advice. It is these practitioners who have in part helped us achieve 100 percent employment of our Securities Certificate graduates for the past seven years. (This is not a representation that our record will continue. Much depends upon the students.)

How do I know if I am interested in Securities Law: Well, the truth is that few of us know our interests within the first few years of law school. Some very few know that they are interested in what makes business tick? How does one raise capital and trade investment instruments. Yes, okay, what about the rest of us? Here is the good news: you don’t have to leap head first into the fury. You can stick in just a toe. Take a course or two. Maybe add an internship. If you are still at sea about the issue, you don’t have to go further. If you do go further, you don’t have to get the Certificate. You can just do a concentration. That also has resume value.

What will I learn at the information session: The program will be brief. It is designed to answer questions as to what courses to take in your second year (or your third, if you have already started down the path), what lectures to attend, what internships to take and so on.

What if I am busy at the time of the meeting: That is unfortunate but not a roadblock. If you know you are seriously considering the program and you can’t make the meeting, email Prof. Lipton (Lipton@law.edu) and set up a time to talk.

Hope: Hope to see you at the informational session.

As well as washcloths, hand towels, pillows/pillow cases, and twin size bed sheets. If it is easier for you to do cash donation--- we will be tabling at the end of the month, and we will go buy the toiletries needed with your cash donation or find a member of the WLC.

March 26th we will be hosting a panel discussion called "Laboring On: A History of Women and the Supreme Court" from 4PM-6:00PM. We plan on discussing various landmark cases in the Supreme Court that address labor rights, specifically sex discrimination claims, qualifications for employment, and other labor issues that disproportionately affect women. We invited Law Professors in the area from GW, Baltimore Law School, and American Law School who are each re-writing a Supreme Court case based on these issues through a feminist perspective. Their writings on this topic are part of a larger project called Feminist Judgments Project, and will be turned into a book.
