

An alternative trading system (ATS) is an SEC-regulated trading venue in which a computerized system matches buy and sell orders of securities. An ATS is not a national securities exchange. An ATS may apply to the SEC to become a national securities exchange.¹ An ATS that registers as a broker-dealer must also comply with the obligations associated with being a registered broker-dealer, including FINRA membership and compliance with FINRA rules.²

A prospective FINRA member firm must seek approval for new FINRA membership through the submission of a New Membership Application \(NMA or Form NMA\). An existing FINRA member firm that is contemplating a material change in business operations, among other changes specified by applicable FINRA rules, must submit a Continuing Membership Application \(CMA or Form CMA\).³ Both types of applications are reviewed by FINRA's Membership Application Program (MAP) Group. MAP's review of Forms NMA and CMA are governed by Rules 1011 through 1019 (collectively, the MAP rules) under the FINRA Rule 1000 Series (Member Application and Associated Persons Registration). For purposes of this Guidance, a prospective applicant for new membership should carefully review, in particular, Rules 1012 (General Provisions), 1013 (New Member Application and Interview), 1014 (Department Decision), and for an existing member that is contemplating the operation of an ATS, Rules 1012, 1014 and 1017 (Application for Approval of Change in Ownership, Control, or Business Operations).

Forms CMA and NMA are organized into sections that align with the standards for admission set forth under Rule 1014(a) followed by a series of questions related to that standard that are intended to help the applicant provide the responses needed to demonstrate that it can meet each of the Rule 1014(a) standards for FINRA membership, and to facilitate FINRA's review of the application. A common impediment to an efficient review of an application (NMA or CMA) pertains to missing or incomplete documentation and information in an application when it is first submitted to FINRA. This Guidance is intended to provide applicants basic information that may help prepare an application for submission to FINRA.

Forms NMA and CMA identify certain information as mandatory or required submissions in the applications. Please note that the information and documents listed in this Guidance are not exhaustive, and while there may be some items listed in this Guidance that may not be mandatory or required in the application, such information and documents are often provided to facilitate the review process. Rules 1013 and 1017 permit FINRA to request additional documents and information as necessary to render a decision on an application. In addition, applicants should review their submissions for consistency so that various documents, such as transaction flows, written procedures, customer disclosures and other written submissions reconcile to one another. Finally, please note that redacted documents will not be accepted, and that responses and documentation in a foreign language must be certified and translated to English, and all foreign currencies converted to U.S. dollars. For additional guidance or questions concerning the CMA or NMA processes, a prospective applicant is encouraged to participate in a "pre-filing" meeting with MAP by contacting membership@finra.org or (212) 858-4000 – Option 5 – Membership Applications.

3. When FINRA receives a CMA or NMA, it will conduct an initial review to determine whether the application is substantially complete in order for FINRA to begin a meaningful review of it. An application that is not substantially complete will be rejected, and the applicant will lose a portion of the application fee. For NMAs, there also may be additional consequences for the submission of an application that is not substantially complete, such as the inability to use the prospective firm's Central Registration Depository (CRD®) number or name.
